

INDIVIDUALS

SEGMENT

PERFORMING ARTISTS

AUDIENCE

GUIDE

FORMAT

NAT 2325-6.2007

PRODUCT ID

Australian Government

Australian Taxation Office

Performing artists

To help employee performing artists
complete their tax return

Covers:

- income you need to include
- deductions you can claim

For more information visit www.ato.gov.au

OUR COMMITMENT TO YOU

We are committed to providing you with advice and information you can rely on.

We make every effort to ensure that our advice and information is correct. If you follow advice in this publication and it turns out to be incorrect, or it is misleading and you make a mistake as a result, we must still apply the law correctly. If that means you owe us money, we must ask you to pay it. However, we will not charge you a penalty or interest if you acted reasonably and in good faith.

If you make an honest mistake when you try to follow our advice and you owe us money as a result, we will not charge you a penalty. However, we will ask you to pay the money, and we may also charge you interest.

If correcting the mistake means we owe you money, we will pay it to you. We will also pay you any interest you are entitled to.

If you feel this publication does not fully cover your circumstances, please seek help from the Tax Office or a professional adviser.

The information in this publication is current at May 2007. We regularly revise our publications to take account of any changes to the law, so make sure that you have the latest information. If you are unsure, you can check for a more recent version on our website at www.ato.gov.au or contact us.

HOW SELF-ASSESSMENT AFFECTS YOU

Self-assessment means the Tax Office uses the information you give on your tax return and any related schedules and forms to work out your refund or tax liability. We do not take any responsibility for checking the accuracy of the details you provide, although our system automatically checks the arithmetic.

Although we do not check the accuracy of your tax return at the time of processing, at a later date we may examine the details more thoroughly by reviewing specific parts, or by conducting an audit of your tax affairs. We also have a number of audit programs that are designed to continually check for missing, inaccurate or incomplete information.

What are your responsibilities?

It is your responsibility to lodge a tax return that is signed, complete and correct. Even if someone else – including a tax agent – helps you to prepare your tax return and any related schedules, you are still legally responsible for the accuracy of your information.

What if you lodge an incorrect tax return?

If you become aware that your tax return is incorrect, you must contact us straight away.

Initiatives to complement self-assessment

There are a number of systems and entitlements that complement self-assessment, including:

- the private ruling system (see below)
- the amendment system (if you find you have left something out of your tax return)
- your entitlement to interest on early payment or over-payment of a tax debt.

Do you need to ask for a private ruling?

If you are uncertain about how a tax law applies to your personal tax affairs, you can ask for a private ruling. To do this, complete a Private ruling application form (non-tax professionals) (NAT 13742), or contact us.

Lodge your tax return by the due date, even if you are waiting for the response to your application. You may need to request an amendment to your tax return once you have received the private ruling.

We publish all private rulings on our website. (Before we publish we edit the text to remove information that would identify you.)

© COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA 2007

This work is copyright. Apart from any use as permitted under the Copyright Act 1968, no part may be reproduced by any process without prior written permission from the Commonwealth available from the Attorney-General's Department. Requests and enquiries concerning reproduction and rights should be addressed to the Commonwealth Copyright Administration, Attorney-General's Department, Robert Garran Offices, National Circuit, Barton ACT 2600 or posted at <http://www.ag.gov.au/cca>

PUBLISHED BY

Australian Taxation Office
Canberra
May 2007
JS 7119

INTRODUCTION

Performing artists is a simple summary of Taxation Ruling TR 95/20 – Income tax: employee performing artists – allowances, reimbursements and work-related expenses. This ruling provides information on tax deductions specifically for employee performing artists.

This guide explains the claims you can and cannot make by looking at the common expenses you might incur as a performing artist. It also includes information about some changes to the tax laws that have occurred since the ruling was issued – for example, capital allowances. It will help you to work out what claims you can make.

Use this guide with TaxPack to get your deduction claims right. When you sign your tax return, you are declaring that everything you have told us is true and that you have or you can get the written evidence you need to prove your claims. You are responsible for this proof even if you use a registered tax agent.

Publications and services

To find out how to get a publication referred to in this guide and for information about our other services, see the inside back cover.

INCOME

TaxPack questions 1–11 and TaxPack supplement questions 12–22 deal with income. Many employee performing artists receive allowances. This section of the guide tells you how to include allowances and reimbursements on your tax return.

Allowances

Employee performing artists commonly get meal allowances and travel allowances.

If any allowance is shown as a separate amount on your payment summary, include it as income at item 2 on your tax return.

Remember – you cannot automatically claim a deduction just because you received an allowance. Read questions D1 to D5 in TaxPack to work out if you can claim a deduction.

Reimbursements

If your employer or any other person reimburses you for expenses you have actually incurred, the payment is called a reimbursement. Generally, you do not include a reimbursement as part of your income so you cannot claim the expense as a deduction.

However, if you receive a reimbursement for car expenses – worked out by reference to the distance travelled by the car – or an allowance for car expenses, you must show the amount of the reimbursement or allowance as income at item 2 on your tax return.

You may be able to claim car expenses in these circumstances. For guidance on the rules relating to deductions for car expenses, read the next page of this guide.

Reportable fringe benefits

If your employer provides certain fringe benefits exceeding $1,000 to you or your relatives, your employer is required to report the total grossed-up amount on your payment summary. You do not include this amount in your total income or loss amount and you do not pay income tax or Medicare levy on it. However, the total will be used in determining certain surcharges, deductions, tax offsets and other government benefits. Read question 9 in TaxPack for more information.

WORK-RELATED DEDUCTIONS

TaxPack questions D1 to D5 deal with work-related deductions. You can claim deductions for the work-related expenses you incurred while doing your job.

The basic rules for claiming deductions are explained in TaxPack – see the information pages at the beginning of the deductions section. Remember:

- If you are claiming a deduction for a work-related expense for which you received an allowance, include the amount of the allowance at item 2 on your tax return.
- If you incur an expense for both work and private purposes, you can claim a deduction only for the work-related portion of your expense.
- If your work-related expense includes an amount of goods and services tax (GST), the GST is part of the total expense and is therefore part of your deduction.

The remainder of this guide covers the common work-related expenses incurred by employee performing artists and whether they can be claimed as work-related deductions. It will help you to answer the work-related deduction questions in TaxPack.

CAR EXPENSES

DID YOU HAVE ANY CAR EXPENSES RELATING TO YOUR WORK AS AN EMPLOYEE?

There are four ways to work out your car expenses. Question D1 of TaxPack explains the four methods and tells you what records you need to prove your claim.

! NOTE

Include the work-related cost of using taxis, short-term car hire, parking fees and tolls at item D2 on your tax return (see Travel expenses on the next page of this guide).

Show the cost of travel for self-education at item D4 on your tax return (see Self-education expenses on page 7 of this guide).

Remember – if your employer reimbursed your car expenses calculated by reference to the distance travelled by the car, include the amount you received at item 2 on your tax return, even if you cannot claim a deduction for these expenses.

Types of travel for which you can claim car expenses

You can claim a deduction for the cost of using your car for work-related travel if:

- you travel directly between two separate workplaces because you have two different employers – for example, you have a second job
- you travel for work-related purposes from your normal workplace to an alternative workplace and back to your normal workplace or directly home – for example, if you need to travel from your rehearsal studio to a performance venue, or
- you travel between two workplaces or between a workplace and a place of business for your employer – for example, between two of your employer's studios.

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of travelling to another workplace for a social function.

You can claim a deduction for the cost of using your car to travel between home and work if:

- you have to carry bulky tools or equipment that you use for work – for example, a drum kit – and there is no secure area for storing your tools or equipment at work (you cannot claim a deduction for car expenses just because the tools or equipment are valuable)
- your home is a base of employment – you start your work at home and travel to a workplace to continue the work, or
- you travel from your home to an alternative workplace for work activities and then to your normal workplace or directly home – for example, if you have to travel from home to a country performance venue.

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of using your car to travel between your home and work:

- if the travel is a normal trip between your home and your workplace – this is a private expense even if you do small tasks on your way to or from work such as picking up sheet music, or
- just because you do shift work, you are on call or there is no public transport available.

Motor vehicle provided by your employer or any other person

You cannot claim a deduction for car expenses if your employer or any other person provides a car for you and you do not pay for any of the running costs.

You cannot claim a deduction for any expenses you incur for the direct operation of a car that your employer provides and that you or your relatives use privately at any time, even if the expenses are work related. Such expenses form part of the valuation of the car for fringe benefits tax purposes.

TRAVEL EXPENSES

DID YOU HAVE ANY TRAVEL EXPENSES RELATING TO YOUR WORK AS AN EMPLOYEE?

You can claim the work-related cost of using vehicles other than cars as well as parking fees and tolls at item D2.

You also claim work-related costs associated with taxis or short-term car hire at this item.

You cannot claim costs met by your employer or costs that are reimbursed – see Reimbursements on page 3.

NOTE

Include the cost of travel for self-education at item D4 on your tax return (see Self-education expenses on page 7 of this guide).

Read question D2 in TaxPack for rules relating to travel expenses and what evidence you need to be able to claim these expenses. However, it is important to note:

- If you travel in the course of your work and take a relative with you, you can claim a deduction only for your own expenses.
- If you are claiming travel expenses and you receive a travel allowance from your employer, you must show the allowance at item 2 on your tax return. For more information, see Taxation Determination TD 2006/43 – Income tax: what are the reasonable travel and meal allowance expense amounts for 2006–2007? A new determination is issued each income year. This determination should be read together with Taxation Ruling TR 2004/6 – Income tax: substantiation exception for reasonable travel and overtime meal allowance expenses.
- You cannot claim the cost of meals incurred during a normal working day that does not involve an overnight stay, even if you receive a travel allowance.

CLOTHING EXPENSES

DID YOU HAVE ANY UNIFORM, OCCUPATION-SPECIFIC CLOTHING, PROTECTIVE CLOTHING, LAUNDRY OR DRY-CLEANING EXPENSES THAT RELATE TO YOUR WORK AS AN EMPLOYEE?

Claim work-related clothing expenses at item D3 on your tax return.

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of purchasing or cleaning a plain uniform or conventional clothing worn at work, even if your employer tells you to wear them, as it is a private expense. This includes expenditure by employee performing artists on:

- clothing worn for medical reasons (for example, support stockings)
- conventional clothing that is damaged at work, and
- everyday footwear (for example, dress, casual or running shoes).

If you received an allowance from your employer for clothing, uniforms, laundry or dry-cleaning, show the amount at item 2 on your tax return. You cannot automatically claim a deduction just because you received a clothing, uniform, laundry or dry-cleaning allowance from your employer.

You cannot claim costs met by your employer or costs that are reimbursed – see Reimbursements on page 3.

You can claim a deduction for the cost of buying, hiring, repairing and cleaning certain work-related uniforms or protective clothing.

Compulsory uniforms

A compulsory uniform is a set of clothing that, worn together, identifies you as an employee of an organisation having a strictly enforced policy that makes it compulsory for you to wear the uniform while at work.

You may be able to claim a deduction for shoes, socks and stockings if they are an essential part of a distinctive compulsory uniform, the characteristics of which – colour, style, type – are specified in your employer's uniform policy. Wearing of the uniform must be consistently enforced. If your employer requires you to wear a distinctive uniform but does not consistently enforce the wearing of the uniform, the design of the uniform must be registered before you can claim a deduction (see Non-compulsory uniforms or corporate wardrobe in the next column).

Single items of compulsory clothing

You may be able to claim for a single item of distinctive clothing, such as a jumper or tie, if it is compulsory for you to wear it at work. Generally, clothing is distinctive if it has the employer's logo permanently attached and the clothing is not available to the general public.

Non-compulsory uniforms or corporate wardrobe

If your employer requires or encourages you to wear a uniform or corporate wardrobe but does not consistently enforce the wearing of it, you can claim a deduction for the cost of the clothing only if the design of the clothing is registered. If you wear a non-compulsory uniform or corporate wardrobe, you cannot claim for stockings, socks or shoes as these items cannot be registered as part of a non-compulsory uniform. Your employer can tell you if your non-compulsory uniform or corporate wardrobe is registered.

Protective clothing

You can claim a deduction for the cost of buying, hiring, replacing or maintaining protective clothing. Protective clothing is clothing that you wear to protect yourself from the risk of illness or injury posed by your income-earning activities or the environment in which you are required to carry them out. You can also claim a deduction for the cost of clothing that you use at work to protect your ordinary clothes from soiling or damage – for example, overalls. For more information, see Taxation Ruling TR 2003/16 – Income tax: deductibility of protective items.

Costumes

You can claim a deduction for the cost of conventional clothing bought or hired as a costume for a role. You can also claim a deduction for the cost of buying or hiring costumes – for example, costumes worn by clowns. You can claim a deduction for the cost of special tights and pumps worn by dancers.

Laundry and dry-cleaning

You can claim a deduction for the cost of laundering and dry-cleaning work clothes that are eligible according to the relevant category described on this page – compulsory uniforms, single items of compulsory clothing, non-compulsory uniforms or corporate wardrobe, and protective clothing. For example, you can claim a deduction for cleaning a shirt with the company logo on it that your employer provides and that you must wear at work.

You can claim laundry expenses for washing, drying or ironing such work clothes, including laundromat expenses. If your claim for laundry expenses is $150 or less, you do not need written evidence – you may use a reasonable basis to work out your claim.

If you claim a deduction for laundry expenses that is more than $150 and your total claim for work-related expenses – other than car, meal allowance, award transport allowance and travel allowance expenses – exceeds $300, you need written evidence for the total claim. You can claim the cost of dry-cleaning work clothes if you have kept written evidence to substantiate your claim. You do not need written evidence if your total claim for work-related expenses is $300 or less.

SELF-EDUCATION EXPENSES

DID YOU HAVE ANY SELF-EDUCATION EXPENSES RELATING TO YOUR WORK AS AN EMPLOYEE?

Claim self-education expenses at item D4 on your tax return.

NOTE

The costs you incur in attending seminars, conferences, education workshops or training courses that are sufficiently connected to your work activities are claimed at item D5 – see Other expenses on the next page.

Self-education expenses are expenses related to a prescribed course of education provided by a school, college, university or other place of education. The course must be undertaken to gain a formal qualification for use in carrying on a profession, business or trade or in the course of employment. You can claim a deduction for the cost of self-education if there is a direct connection between your self-education and your work activities at the time the expense was incurred.

Self-education expenses are not deductible if your study is designed to get you:

- a job
- a new job, or
- income from a new income-earning activity.

Self-education expenses can include textbooks, stationery, student union fees, course fees, certain travel expenses and the decline in value of equipment (see Capital allowances on the next page) to the extent they are used for self-education purposes.

You cannot claim costs met by your employer or costs that are reimbursed – see Reimbursements on page 3.

In certain circumstances you may have to reduce your deduction for self-education expenses by $250. However, you may have other types of expenses – some of which are not deductible – that can be offset against the $250 before you have to reduce the amount you can claim.

Read question D4 in TaxPack for more information on self-education expenses.

OTHER EXPENSES

DID YOU HAVE ANY OTHER EXPENSES RELATING TO YOUR WORK AS AN EMPLOYEE?

Here is a list of other work-related expenses commonly incurred by employee performing artists. Read question D5 in TaxPack for more information about the deductibility of these expenses. You cannot claim costs met by your employer or costs that are reimbursed – see Reimbursements on page 3.

Agents fees

You can claim a deduction for commissions paid to theatrical agents. You cannot claim a deduction for upfront or joining fees.

Answering machines, mobile phones, pagers and other telecommunications equipment

For information about claiming deductions for the decline in value of answering machines, mobile phones, pagers and other telecommunications equipment, see Capital allowances below.

Audition expenses

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of preparing for or attending auditions, as they are incurred in getting work rather than doing work.

Capital allowances

You can claim a deduction – called a capital allowance – for the decline in value of equipment used for work. If the equipment is also used for private purposes, you cannot claim a deduction for that part of the decline in value.

You cannot claim a deduction if the equipment is supplied by your employer or any other person.

Generally, the amount of your deduction depends on the effective life of the equipment.

Equipment costing $300 or less

If you purchased equipment costing $300 or less and you use it mainly for work, you can claim an immediate deduction for the work-related portion of the cost.

You cannot claim an immediate deduction if:

- the equipment is part of a set that you buy in the same income year and the total cost of the set is more than $300 (the set rule), or
- the equipment is one of a number of identical or substantially identical items you buy in an income year and the total cost of the items is more than $300 (the multiples rule).

Low-value pool

There is also an option to pool equipment costing less than $1,000 and equipment written down to less than $1,000 under the diminishing value method. A deduction for the decline in value of equipment in such a low-value pool is worked out by a single calculation using set rates.

For more information on claiming a deduction for a low-value pool, read question D6 in TaxPack and make your claim at item D6 on your tax return.

Equipment for which you may be able to claim a capital allowance includes:

- computers and software
- a professional library
- telephones, answering machines, facsimile machines, mobile phones, pagers and other telecommunications equipment
- television, video recorders and compact disc players
- tools and equipment.

For more information about claiming deductions for the decline in value of equipment, read the Guide to depreciating assets (NAT 1996).

Child care

You cannot claim a deduction for child care expenses. These are private expenses even if you need to pay for child care to go to work.

Coaching classes – for example, for acting, singing and dancing

You can claim a deduction for the cost of classes taken to maintain existing specific skills or to obtain work-related specific skills. You can claim a deduction for the cost of lessons to acquire specific skills for use in a particular role or performance.

Computers and software

For information about claiming deductions for the decline in value of computers and software, see Capital allowances on this page.

Drivers licence

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of getting or renewing your drivers licence as it is a private expense.

Fines

You cannot claim a deduction for fines imposed under a law of the Commonwealth, a state, a territory, a foreign country or by a court – for example, a fine you received if you were caught speeding when driving between jobs.

First aid courses

You can claim a deduction for the cost of first aid training courses if you, as a designated first aid person, are required to undertake first aid training to assist in emergency work situations.

Fitness expenses

You can claim a deduction for fitness expenses if you are required to maintain a very high level of fitness and physical activity is an essential element in your work – for example, as a trapeze artist. You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of maintaining general fitness or body shape.

Gifts

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of gifts such as flowers or alcohol for fellow performers, producers or directors as it is a private expense.

Glasses and contact lenses

You can claim a deduction for the cost of tinted contact lenses to alter eye colour or special spectacle frames required for a role.

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of prescription glasses or contact lenses.

Grooming

You can claim a deduction for the cost of a particular hairstyle if it is required for a role. You can claim a deduction for the cost of hairdressing specifically to maintain a required hair length or style as part of a costume for continuity purposes. You can claim a deduction for the cost of stage make-up, including the cost of cleansing materials for removing stage make-up. You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of general hairdressing, make-up or facials.

Home office

Private study

You can claim a deduction for the additional running expenses of an office or a study at home that you use for income-producing activities. Running expenses include decline in value of home office equipment, the costs of repairs to your home office furniture and fittings, and heating, cooling, lighting and cleaning expenses. You cannot claim occupancy expenses – for example, rent, rates, mortgage interest and house insurance premiums, unless you are carrying on a business. If your only income is paid to you as an employee, you are not considered to be carrying on a business.

Diary records noting the time the home office was used for work are acceptable evidence of a connection between the use of a home office and your work. You will need to keep diary records during a representative four-week period. For more information on what records you should keep and the calculation of home office expenses, see Law Administration Practice Statement PS LA 2001/6 – Home office expenses: diaries of use and calculation of home office expenses.

Place of business

You can claim a deduction for part of the running and occupancy expenses of your home if you use an area of your home as a place of business. Taxation Ruling TR 93/30 – Income tax: deductions for home office expenses has information on whether or not an area set aside has the character of a place of business.

There may also be capital gains tax implications if you sell your home and it has been used as a place of business.

Insurance of equipment

You can claim a deduction for the cost of insuring the equipment you use to the extent that you use it for work.

Interest costs

You can claim the cost of interest on money borrowed to purchase work-related equipment. If the equipment was also used for private purposes, you cannot claim a deduction for that part of the interest.

Meals

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of meals eaten during a normal working day as it is a private expense, even if you receive an allowance to cover the meal expense. For information about claiming deductions for the cost of meals eaten during overtime, see Overtime meals below.

Newspapers

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of newspapers as it is a private expense.

Overtime meals

You may be able to claim a deduction for overtime meal expenses you incurred if you received an overtime meal allowance from your employer which was paid under an industrial law, award or agreement. To claim a deduction, you will need written evidence if your claim per meal is more than the rate stated in TaxPack for overtime meals. You can only claim for overtime meal expenses incurred on those occasions when you worked overtime and you received an overtime meal allowance for that overtime. Amounts received as overtime meal allowance must be included as income at item 2 on your tax return.

If you have received an award overtime meal allowance not shown on a payment summary, you may choose not to include the allowance as income at item 2 on your tax return and not claim a deduction, as long as the allowance does not exceed the Commissioner's reasonable allowance amounts and you have fully expended it.

An amount for overtime meals that has been folded in as part of your normal salary or wage income is not considered to be an overtime meal allowance.

For more information, see Taxation Determination TD 2006/43 – Income tax: what are the reasonable travel and meal allowance expense amounts for 2006–2007? This determination should be read together with Taxation Ruling TR 2004/6 – Income tax: substantiation exception for reasonable travel and overtime meal allowance expenses.

Photographs

You can claim a deduction for the cost of maintaining a photographic portfolio for publicity purposes. You cannot claim a deduction for the initial cost of preparing the portfolio.

Professional library

For information about claiming deductions for the decline in value of a professional library that includes books, tapes, compact discs, records and videos containing reference material directly related to your income-earning activities, see Capital allowances on page 8.

Removal and relocation

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost involved in taking up a transfer in an existing employment or taking up new employment with a different employer.

Research expenses

You can claim a deduction for the cost of researching a role or character that you have been employed to play – for example, the cost of reference material containing information on a character, era or event.

Seminars, conferences and training courses

You can claim a deduction for the cost of attending seminars, conferences and training courses that are sufficiently connected to your work activities.

Social functions

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of attending award nights or other social events, even if there is an entertainment industry connection, as it is a private expense.

Tapes, compact discs and cassettes

You can claim a deduction for the work-related part of the cost of audio and video tapes and compact discs – for example, tapes used for rehearsal.

Technical or professional publications

You can claim a deduction for the cost of journals, periodicals and magazines that have a content specifically related to your employment as an employee performing artist – for example, the magazine Encore.

Telephone calls, telephone rental and connection costs

You can claim a deduction for the cost of work-related telephone calls.

You can claim a deduction for your telephone rental if you can show that you are on call or are regularly required to telephone your employer or clients while you are away from the office. If you also use your telephone for private purposes, you must apportion the cost of telephone rental between work-related and private use.

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of connecting a telephone, mobile phone, pager or any other telecommunications equipment as it is a capital expense.

You cannot claim a deduction for the cost of an unlisted telephone number (silent number) as it is a private expense.

Television, video recorders and compact disc players

For information about claiming a deduction for the decline in value of these items, see Capital allowances on page 8.

Theatre and film tickets

You can claim a deduction for the cost of theatre and film tickets if the show has a content directly related to your current work. You cannot claim the cost of tickets for shows you attend for general interest, entertainment or other private purposes.

Tools and equipment

For information about claiming deductions for the decline in value of tools and equipment used for work, see Capital allowances on page 8.

Repairs

You can claim a deduction for the cost of repairing tools and equipment used for work. If the tools or equipment were also used for private purposes, you cannot claim a deduction for that part of the repair costs.

Union and professional association fees

You can claim a deduction for these fees. If the amount you paid is shown on your payment summary, you can use it to prove your claim. You can claim a deduction for a levy paid in certain circumstances – for example, to protect the interests of members and their jobs.

You cannot claim a deduction for:

- joining fees, or
- levies or other amounts you paid to assist families of employees suffering financial difficulties as a result of employees being on strike or having been laid off.

REMEMBER:

- Make sure you write down all your income on your tax return – include any benefits you received from the government, any income from a second job and any interest you received from a bank, building society or credit union.
- Sign your tax return. It is your responsibility to make sure your tax return is correct even if you use a registered tax agent.
- Keep all the records you need to prove your deduction claims. TaxPack tells you which records you need.
- Ask for more help if you need it – ask your registered tax agent or phone us.

MORE INFORMATION

INTERNET

- For general tax information and up-to-date and comprehensive information about deductions, visit www.ato.gov.au

PUBLICATIONS

Publications referred to in this guide are:

- Guide to depreciating assets (NAT 1996)
- Law Administration Practice Statement PS LA 2001/6 – Home office expenses: diaries of use and calculation of home office expenses
- Taxation Determination TD 2006/43 – Income tax: what are the reasonable travel and meal allowance expense amounts for 2006–2007?
- Taxation Ruling TR 93/30 – Income tax: deductions for home office expenses
- Taxation Ruling TR 95/20 – Income tax: employee performing artists – allowances, reimbursements and work-related expenses
- Taxation Ruling TR 2003/16 – Income tax: deductibility of protective items
- Taxation Ruling TR 2004/6 – Income tax: substantiation exception for reasonable travel and overtime meal allowance expenses
- TaxPack (NAT 0976)
- TaxPack supplement (NAT 2677)
- Taxpayers' charter – what you need to know (NAT 2548).

To get any publication referred to in this guide:

- visit our website at www.ato.gov.au/publications for publications, taxation rulings, practice statements and forms
- phone our Publications Distribution Service on 1300 720 092, or
- visit one of our shopfronts.

INFOLINES

We can offer a more personalised service if you provide your tax file number (TFN).

- Personal tax 13 28 61
Individual income tax and general personal tax enquiries, including capital gains tax
- Business 13 28 66
General business tax enquiries including capital gains tax, GST rulings, Australian business number (ABN), pay as you go (PAYG) instalments, business deductions, activity statements (including lodgment and payment), accounts and business registration (including ABN and TFN), dividend and royalty withholding tax

- Superannuation 13 10 20
- Fax 13 28 60

Get information faxed to you about individual taxes and the repayment of debts under the Higher Education Loan Programme (HELP) and the Student Financial Supplement Scheme (SFSS). Note that debts under the former Higher Education Contribution Scheme (HECS) have now been added to any debt under HELP to become one accumulated HELP debt. Phone 13 28 60 and follow the instructions to order information to be faxed to you.

OTHER SERVICES

- Translating and Interpreting Service 13 14 50

If you do not speak English well and want to talk to a tax officer, phone the Translating and Interpreting Service for help with your call.

- Hearing or speech impairment

If you are deaf or have a hearing or speech impairment, you can phone the Tax Office through the National Relay Service:

- If you are a TTY or modem user, phone 13 36 77 and ask for the number you want. For 1800 free call numbers, phone 1800 555 677 and ask for the number you want.
- If you are a voice-only (speak and listen) user, phone 1300 555 727 and ask for the number you want. For 1800 free call numbers, phone 1800 555 727 and ask for the number you want.

LODGE ONLINE USING E-TAX

To prepare and lodge your tax return online, use e-tax – go to www.ato.gov.au

- e-tax is a user-friendly step-by-step process.
- Help is available online or over the phone.
- It is safe and secure, with built-in checks and calculators to help you get it right.
- Most refunds are issued within 14 days.

For more information, visit our website at www.ato.gov.au

FEEDBACK

Reader feedback helps us to improve the information we provide. If you have any feedback about this publication, please write to:

Editor
Publishing Coordination
Marketing and Education
Micro Enterprises and Individuals
Australian Taxation Office
PO Box 900
CIVIC SQUARE ACT 2608

As this is a publications area only, any tax matters will be passed on to a technical area; alternatively, you can phone our Personal Infoline on 13 28 61 for help.

